SOUTHERN PACIFIC'S COOKING SCHOOL.

Adopts Novel Method of Catering to the Palates of its Fine Dining Car Service Patrons

The chefs on the diners of the Southern Pacific Company are being taught to be more finished cooks. They know how to cook, but a cook can always learn something new and one of the famous hotel chefs of the country is the professor in a cooking school for cooks that has just been established in the Southern Pacific dining department. Ernest Haeusslein, late chef at the Holland House of New York, Fairmont Hotel of San Francisco, Auditorium of Chicago, Malvern at Bar Harbor, New York State House at the Alaska-Yukon Pacific exposition at Seattle and the man who fed the New York bankers party during its 1910 trip to the American bankers' convention at Los Angeles, is the instructor in this new institution of learning.

He is making the Southern Pacific dining car service uniform. All of the chefs are to learn how to cook the most tempting dishes. Scientific management in the kitchen is also a feature of the course. A degree of doctor of culinary art will probably be given at the end of each course, although the length of the course has not yet been decided upon. Every dining car crew, as it reaches the Oakland yards of the Southern Pacific, is turned over to the chef, and until it starts on another trip across the continent or up or down the coast the cooks are being taught how to prepare new and fancy dishes that will tickle the palate of the most fastidious gourmet. Each dining car crew, which consists of a chef, a first, second and third cook, prepares a meal just before it starts out on a trip. This meal, prepared under Haeusslein, is served by that crew on its next run.

Haeusslein does not remain at Oakland, however. He bears the title of "Traveling Chef," and he spends several days at the different commissaries of the company each month. Since the first of December he has had about thirty crews from the company and he has taught them new methods of preparing soups, salads, sauces, garnishes, entrees, roasts and desserts. Not that they did not know some of these things already, but he is adding to their lists of accomplishments in these lines. Some original recipes are now in course of preparation by Haeusslein and he has promised them for the women's pages of the papers of the west.

Sixteen-Year Old Boy Steals Boat

Rob, a sixteen-year-old Indian boy, who formerly lived in Sebastopol, stole a 14-foot half-deck boat, where it was moored near the Sonoma Drawbridge, last Saturday, and made good his escape. He also purloined with the boat an anchor, some blankets and cooking utensils and $10 in cash.

Deputy Sheriff Ryan was notified of the robbery and immediately got busy to catch the thief, who is supposed to have headed for the other side of San Pablo bay.

Death of an Old Resident

Giacoma Cavilli, who has resided here for over thirty years, passed away on Christmas evening after an illness of a few days. The cause of death was paralysis. The deceased, who was a native of Switzerland and aged 70 years, was a widower. He leaves a son and a daughter who reside in the southern part of the state. The funeral took place Wednesday, the remains being laid to rest in the Catholic Cemetery.

MATHEWSON WINS HIS LAW SUIT.

Judge Seawell Decides the Land Controversy Between the Well-Known Attorney and S. Nonella

Judge Emmet Seawell handed down a decision in the case of S. Nonella vs. H. P. Mathewson, last Saturday in favor of the latter. This suit has long been before the courts.

The property in controversy is situated between the lands of the contestants, and each claimed it. Mathewson has had the property fenced and in use for a number of years, and recently Nonella brought suit to gain title to the same.

Mathewson went into court and fought the thing through. In his opinion Judge Seawell states that he is of the opinion that the defendant has shown by a preponderance of evidence that he has had the parcel of land enclosed for a period of more than five years before the commencement of the action, and that he has exercised acts of ownership to the extent and degree that renders his claim valid as provided by the statutes of this state.

Another New Boat For The Southern Pacific Co.

Another ferry steamer for San Francisco bay, making three to be constructed by the Southern Pacific Co. within a year, will glide into the water from the ways on the Oakland estuary shortly after the first of the year. This new ferry steamer will be christened the Alameda and the Southern Pacific will then have three of its ferryboats named after the important cities of that county. The new ferryboat is a part of the provision being made to take care of the increased traffic anticipated during the Panama Pacific Exposition to be held in San Francisco during 1915.

The Alameda is being constructed at the company's shipyards at Oakland. The hull is to be of steel and the superstructure frame. The new vessel is slightly smaller than the steamer Berkeley but it will have greater speed. Another characteristic of the Alameda will be two independent compound engines of 1250 horsepower each, located on either side of the boat, one engine for each paddle wheel. The thoroughfare on the main deck will be located in the center of the steamer. There will be a seating capacity of 2052 persons and all of the interior will be in walnut and teakwood.

There will be four 18-foot lifeboats, constructed of galvanized iron, located on each end of the steamer. The restaurant and crew's quarters will be situated below the main deck. Every part of the new steamer will be of the most modern construction.

THE CONGRESSIONAL RE-APPORTENMENT

Sonoma is Now in the First District Comprising Among Other Counties Humboldt and Del Norte

The Congressional reapportionment which was finally passed by the Legislature Sunday just previous to adjournment, puts Sonoma county in the First District instead of in the second, with these other counties: Del Norte, Humboldt, Mendocino, Glenn, Butte, Yuba, Sutter, Marin, Colusa and Lake.

The other districts are classified as follows: Second—Siskiyou, Modoc, Trinity, Shasta, Lassen, Tehama, Plumas, Sierra, Nevada, Placer, El Dorado, Amador, Calaveras, Alpine, Tuolumne, Mariposa.

Third—Napa, Yolo, Sacramento, Solano, Contra Costa and San Joaquin.

Fourth and Fifth—San Francisco.

Sixth—Alameda.

Seventh—Stanislaus, Merced, Madera, Fresno, Kings, Tulare, and Kern.

Eighth—San Mateo, Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, San Benito, Monterey, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara, Ventura.

Ninth and Tenth—Los Angeles, El Dorado, San Bernardino, Orange, Riverside, San Diego, Mono, Inyo, Imperial.

It is understood in political circles that Congressman Kent's friends put up a hard fight to keep his old district intact and it is to his liking at all the substituting of Del Norte and Humboldt counties for those of Sacramento and Napa. But it is all in the game, William, as other statesmen of your stripe can insure and reform and perform as well as your immaculate self.

Revenue Officers Seize Moonshine Whiskey Still

An illicit still was seized on the east side of Sonoma Mountain last Wednesday by Revenue officers Geo. B. Baer and W. J. Delaney. The seizure was made on S. Galaridi's ranch on a tip which came from Petaluma. The still, which has a capacity of eighty gallons, was taken to that city and placed in the bonded warehouse as evidence against the offender, who will be prosecuted.

Stomach Blood and Liver Troubles

Much sickness starts with weak stomach, and consequent poor, impoverished blood. Nervous and pale-people lack good, rich, red blood. Their stomachs need invigorating for, after all, a man can be no stronger than his stomach.

DISPATCHES from Sacramento in describing the closing scenes of the Legislature and the final battle over the Congressional reapportionment bill, say that Senator Juilliard (Democrat) jumped to his feet and dramatically exclaimed: "It's not treating Kent fairly!" alluding to that part of the bill which put Humboldt and Del Norte counties into the Marin statesman's district and relegated Sacramento and Napa counties into another congressional district. Holy Moses, that's the limit, isn't it? Now, we rise to remark, why should Senator Juilliard, even though he be a doughty warrior of the National Guard of California, rush to the defense of the insurgent Kent, who is neither fish, flesh or fowl, nor even good old Dutch herring, from a political standpoint. Verily, Governor Johnson has got "his" Legislature buffaloed all right.

BOB LA FOLLETT's boom has collapsed, say dispatches from various sections of the East, much to the dismay of his insurgency following in this State, who now realize that they have been pursuing a political will-o-the-wisp. Better switch off to Teddy, the mighty hunter, whose elephant hides are bullet proof, or Dr. Cook, who climbed Mount McKinley and then discovered the North Pole.

FRIEND RICHARDSON, who succeeded Billy Shannon as State printer, s being accused of violating the eight-hour law for women in his office. Richardson is apt to find out that suiting the people of Berkeley and suiting the people as a state servant are two different things, and that with the guns of rival politicians trained on a fellow holding down a job on the state payroll is no Press Association excursion either.

KENT FIRST LAMB LED TO SLAUGHTER

His Friends Lose Out—Curry
Looms Up and Johnson
Has Ambitions,
Too

The first public evidence of the widening breach between the leaders of the insurgents in California has come in the new congressional reapportionment of the state. Everywhere the close friends of Congressman William Kent are denouncing what they term the gerrymandering of Kent out of Congress. Governor Johnson is being censured for being a party to the redistricting scheme which leaves the Golconda cattleman out in the cold. It is openly said that Kent has hardly a chance to be elected in the new district into which he has been placed by an extraordinary combination of crooked lines which enclose Kentfield, Marin county, within the first Congressional District, the whole of which takes in Del Norte, Humboldt, Mendocino, Sonoma, Lake, Marin, Colusa, Sutter, Yuba, Butte and Glenn counties.

That district north and south reaches from the Oregon boundary to San Francisco bay, a distance of more than 400 miles, and from the coast line east for more than 150 miles at the widest part. The time it would take to make a canvass in that amount of territory and the expense are no insignificant features of the career of a statesman, to say nothing of the trials of an unknown man to make the acquaintance and win the support of strangers.

Hardly more than half of Kent's old district, the Second, is left to him in the First, into which his home is cast under the gerrymander. He is a stranger in the mountains and valleys to the north and the propaganda that helped him so much in his last campaign did not reach to those new parts. Moreover, it is the opinion of astute politicians that that section of the old district taken away from him was the voting place of most of his admirers, for instance Sacramento county. While Kent's strength in Marin and the contiguous territory is not doubted, it is declared to be far from as great as it was when he was elected.

Not only that, but a very strong deterrent to his hopes has come in the fight in the person of Chas. F. Curry, formerly Secretary of State and aspirant for the Republican nomination for governor. Curry did especially well in the new congressional district in the gubernatorial primary and his friends are urging him to stand for Congress. He has not announced his intentions, but it is asserted by many who profess to know that Curry will make the race.

Another feature of the situation that fills the hearts of Kent's friends with resentment is that the gerrymander places Judge C. H. Connick, "The Northern Sage," whose congressional aspirations are well known, into the Second district. Judge Connick was insurgent when Kent was building fences and he is well liked by those who affect the new styles in political fashions.

Both Connick and Curry have friends who are legion in the new district, and the supporters of each claim an assured victory, while Kent's proponents are raging against the administration.

Assemblyman Rutherford drew the congressional apportionment bill and he is part and parcel of the administration. He was a daily caller at the office of Governor Johnson during the regular and special sessions of the Legislature, and it is directly charged that Rutherford's bill had the approval of the executive. When it first made its appearance there was a great howl set up by Kent's friends. From the beginning they charged with speeches and in the newspapers that Rutherford's scheme was a direct blow at Kent and that it was an unsupported and unjust plan to eliminate the Marin cattleman. Those who did not know the inside workings of the administration machine confidently declared that the Rutherford bill had no chance of passage.

Kent's friends drew a bill that would give him almost the same territory he had before and they sat back, sure that it would go through.

But Rutherford's bill gave Frank Devlin of Vellejo, the first President of the Lincoln-Roosevelt League, a district that everyone was sure would land him safely in Congress, and it placed Judge Connick in the position he had demanded from the administration for his constancy to Johnson. Connick was emphatic in his assertions that to beat Kent would be one of the easiest tasks of his life. So it was fixed.

Then the Kent men who were not in the confidence of the powers that he began hunting for the whys and wherefores. And they found them. They found that Kent is first of all, a Francis J. Heney man. They are pals, politically and otherwise. Heney made a speech in Sacramento last fall in which he said:

"I am going to be a candidate for the United States Senate and I am going to win."

Governor Johnson is a candidate for United States senator, and he believes that if George C. Perkins serves out his term and his successor is elected the well-worn path from the office of the Governor to a seat in the Senate will be trod by Hiram W. Johnson. But Senator Perkins is in very bad health, and there is a general impression that he will not serve out his term. Should Senator Perkins resign, Governor Johnson feels he would be forced to appoint Heney to fill out the unexpired term. But the danger of splitting the La Follette wing of the party would be very great.

Heney is hoping Perkins will resign. Johnson is hoping Perkins will serve out his term. The Governor is sure that Heney would be forced to step aside for him in such an event. But in the meantime, Johnson is quite peeved. And Kent is the first sacrifice. —San Francisco Post Giacomo Cavilli of this place passed away at the Leix sanitarium on Christmas night after a short illness. The deceased was a man of culture and highly educated in the Swiss language and was greatly esteemed by many friends in this part of the valley. May he rest in peace.

Chas. Groskopf returned to his home here Tuesday after spending the Christmas holidays with out of town friends and relatives.

Miss Dorothy Dobbel entertained a number of her friends at a Christmas tree party Tuesday afternoon at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dobbel, Buena Vista. All speak highly of the reception given by this popular young lady.

Vineburg, Dec. 28, 1911.

Easy Jim: I am mad, or at least angry, but I wish you a Happy New Year just the same. Now, I will tell you why I am angry. It is because every one I meet wants to know who is Viola Vineburg. So next week I will describe her and let them guess.

I know a young society gentleman who does not like Christmas presents—that is, the kind he received. Of course, some of his fair lady friends, of whom he has many, sent him a nice doll, but he did not like it because it was a wax doll and he was afraid it would melt. He says he would like a China doll better.

Viola Vineburg.

Vineburg, Dec. 28, 1911.

Dear Easy: I hear that one of our fairest buds is engaged and judging from the number of diamonds she wears I believe it. I wish I was engaged. Good bye, Easy. Fannie Ferndale.

COUNTY HOSPITAL INVESTIGATION.

Charges Made by Three Medics of Santa Rosa Who Want County Physician

Bogle's Job

The Board of Supervisors were in session several days this week to investigate charges of alleged County Hospital extravagance brought by Dr. Jackson Temple, Dr. Fred O. Pryor and Dr. J. W. Cline, of Santa Rosa, who are evidently yearning for Dr. S. S. Bogle's job of County Physician.

Until these charges were brought by these sore-headed medics it has generally been supposed that the County Hospital of Sonoma County was one of the most economical and well conducted institutions of its kind in the State, and we are loth to believe there is anything in the charges except professional jealousy.

The charges of extravagance for the most part are based on memoranda submitted to the Supervisors by Dr. Temple, of which the following is a fair sample:

December 15, 1910—Wood alcohol, $1.50. Regular price $1. Objection—More than the retail price.

February 8.—Fluid extract of Cascara, one quart #3. Objection—Competition would have made this much less. Paul T. Hahman, stated that the price should have been according to the new contract, not less than $4.80.

February 16.—One gallon of lime water, 75 cents. Objection—Should be made at the county hospital at a cost of practically nothing.

March 9.—One pound of Achetanil compound, $2.25. Should cost less with more competitive bidding.

May 2, 1911.—One pint of Fehling's Solution, $1. Objection—value not over 15 cents—handsome profit at 50 cents.

May 8.—200 bichloride tablets, $1.20. Objection—Strength not specified.

Gauze costs the county $4.75 per hundred yards. Dr. Temple asserted that a satisfactory gauze should be bought for not more than $3.50. It was pointed out that the contract called for the best gauze.

May 1, 1911—500 bichloride tablets, $1.65; May 15, 500 tablets, $1.75; September 16, 500 tablets, $2 cents; October 27, 500 tablets, 35 cents. Objection—no more billing; does not show the strength of the tablets used.

October 19.—One dozen Pears' soap, $1.75. Objection—Fancy toilet article.

October 28.—One dozen Cashmere Bouquet soap, $2.50. Objection—Out of place in a free institution; nothing wrong with price.

October 2, 1911—Double truss, $5. Objection—Contracted to the county for $2. It may have been a special order improperly billed.

October 8, 1911—Hospital malted milk, $3.75 per package. Objection—Contracted to the county for $3.50. Supplied to the Contra Costa county hospital for $2.65.

October 10, 1911—One quart of cod liver oil, 50 cents. Objection—

This is at the rate of $2 per gallon whereas it is contracted to the county at $1.75.

October 13.—One quart of witch hazel, 50 cents. Objection—66 2-3 per cent above contract price, which is $1.20 per gallon.

October 19, 1911—Hypodermic complete, $.85. Objection—Hard to determine just what this means. Syringe and case contracted at $1.98.

October 21, 1911—Two pairs of rubber gloves, $2.19. Objection—Contracted for $1.46.

The Supervisors after being in session all day Wednesday taking testimony adjourned to meet again the first Monday in January when they will render their decision.

THE "NINE DAYS' WONDER."

William Kemp, the Jigger and Jester.
Was the Original One.

It was a certain William Kemp, the most original famous dancer of Queen-Elizabeth's day and the creator of low comedy roles in Shakespearean plays, who was the original "nine days' wonder," for Kemp, with ribbons on his jerkin and bells around his legs, jiggered and capered all the way from London to Norwich, a distance of some 125 miles. He danced along for nine days and thus made his name and the expression part of household conversation in every hamlet in England and on the continent as well.

Accounts of Will Kemp occupy many pages in the books on Elizabethan drama and those on the manners and customs of the time. It is universally conceded that Kemp created the character of Dogberry in "Much Ado About Nothing" and that of Peter in "Romeo and Juliet."

As for the "nine days' wonder," Elizabethan writers, Ben Jonson among others, often refer to him. He was the subject of many pamphlets, and Kemp himself wrote an autobiography.

Only one copy of Kemp's "Nine Days' Wonder, Performed in a Dance From London to Norwich," is extant, in the Bodleian library at Oxford. But there have been several reprints. Kemp, who describes himself as a man who spent his life "in mad liggies and merry lasses," recounts blithely and wittily how he and his taborn made their way through Romford, Chelmsford, Sudbury, Rockland and Barford Bridge to Norwich.

They were entertained royally along the route and despite the bad weather, which delayed them, would doubtless have arrived at Norwich long before the twenty-three days were up had not the good folk along the road been so hospitable.

Kemp started from the house of the lord mayor of London, and at Norwich he was received by the mayor of that flourishing town, who presented him with a sum of money and pensioned him for life.

When he again reached London, where he had "put out" a sum of money against accident along the road, Kemp was repaid fourfold. It was in 1599 that Kemp performed his "nine days' wonder." It is written, but with doubtful authority, that the idol of the Elizabethan populace afterward capped this feat by jiggering over the Alps.

In the old woodcut in the account of Kemp's "dance" that most comical and conceited Cavalier Monsieur du Kemp" is seen in Elizabethan morris dance costume jiggering away to the music of pipe and drum of his taborn.—Harper's Weekly.

England's Broad Arrow.
The property of the English crown has been marked with the broad arrow from times so early that no one can now tell when it was first used for this purpose or what was its meaning. This queer mark is stamped upon the king's property of every description, from castles, ships and big guns down to bagging and convicts' uniforms, and there is a penalty of £200 for removing it. The latter usage reminds one of the practice in Athens more than 2,000 years ago whereby captives taken in wars were branded with the figure of an owl as a mark of Athenian ownership. In the same manner Samos branded her captives with the figure of a ship.
